

Women of Color in the Academy Screenings

Continue the connections made from the Women of Color in the Academy Conference and further engagement with Women of Color in the Academy Initiatives by attending the screenings for A Reckoning in Boston and And She Could Be Next in June, July, and August.

A white filmmaker comes into a Black community looking for transformation in the lives of low income adults enrolled in a night course in the humanities. As he spends more time with the students, he's awakened to the violence, racism and gentrification that threaten their very place in the city.

And She Could Be Next, directed by Grace Lee and Marjan Safinia, tells the story of a defiant movement of women of color, transforming politics from the ground up. The series follows candidates and organizers across the country, asking whether democracy itself can be preserved—and made stronger—by those most marginalized. The series features history-makers including Rashida Tlaib and Stacey Abrams.

